Annie Wright School

THE SHIELD 1998

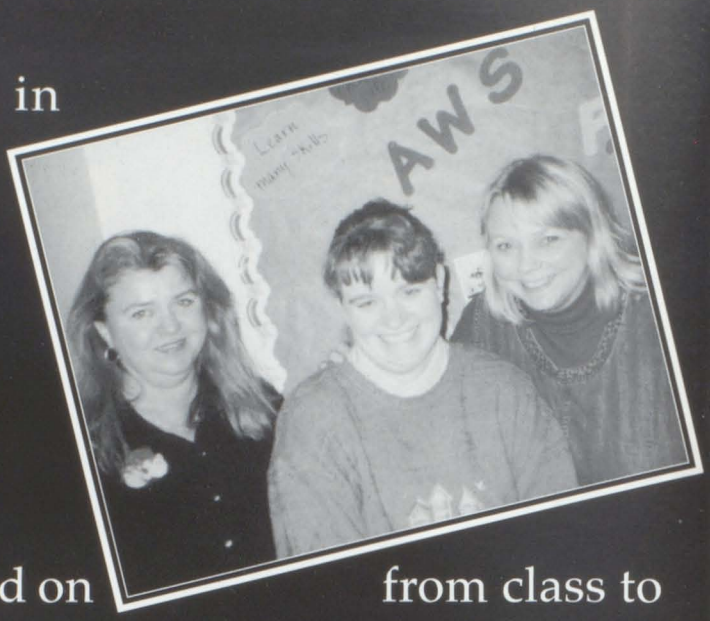

"A teacher affects eternity: she can never tell where her influence stops."

- Henry B. Adams

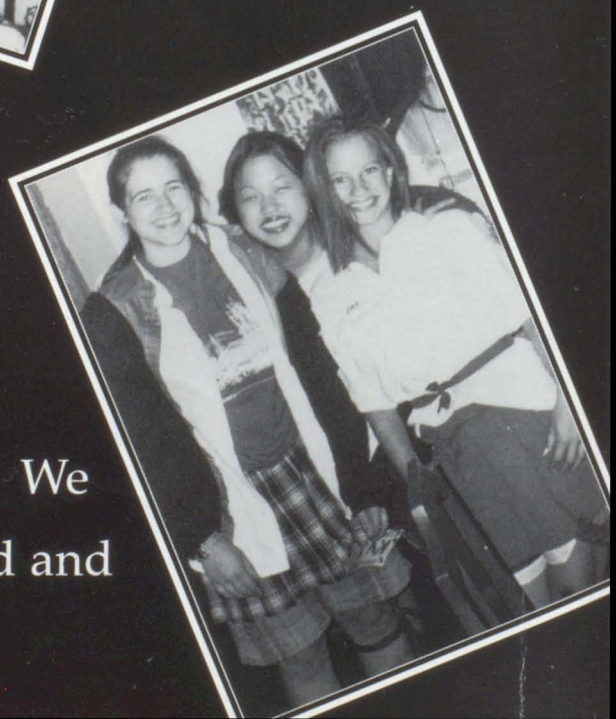

The 1998 SHIELD is dedicated to a true teacher,
Mrs. Barbara Klarsch.

The phrase, Pass It On, in relationship to Annie Wright School, embodies two connected concepts: a sense of continuity and a sense of stewardship. Continuity is inherent in the traditions passed on from class to class: tie color, the Spade, and May Day in the Upper School, as well as sailor dresses, shopping night, the airplane toss and Spring trips in the Lower and Middle Schools. Stewardship implies guardianship over something of value and, in fact, the responsibility of adding to that value. We must guard and enhance the Annie undefinable essence of Wright, the essence which is manifested in tradition, innovation, learning, positive interaction, honesty, and enthusiasm. It is this essence which we hope, through photographs, to pass on in this and every other edition of the Shield-- the essence that makes an individual Annie Wright for each of us.

Passing Through Life

Hand-raising escapades!!

Do you remember those days when you could barely stay in your seat because you were trying to raise your hand high enough for the teacher to see? Or those classes where it seemed like nobody ever raised their hand? Check out the Lower School students on these pages as they find new ways of going about this ageless tradition...

The fourth grade raises their hands to the sky to pick ripe apples on an unusually sunny afternoon.

Lindsey Shelley wins the contest for longest arm.

Good enough for the front of the refrigerator! Third graders Kelsey, Natasha, Andrew, and Emily show off their prize winning projects.

Strike a pose! Third graders Lauren Morkill, Max King, Kevin Ball, Mack Konigsfeld, Alex Ristuben, Andrew Nakayama, and Ben Diller find new ways to grab Mrs. Thompson's attention.

No problem, that's easy! Robert Geiersbach calmly waits to be called upon, sure of his correct answer.

"Call on me!" Caitlin Mayberry eagerly volunteers an answer on 3rd grade Parent Day.

Say Ah! Kindergarteners Margaret Robinson and Katie Utgaard ask, "Do you like see-food?"

Lower School

Across the years...

Who are those wacky adults??

Everywhere Lower School students go during their academic day they interact with adults. Whether the adult is a teacher, a parent, or an adult volunteer, you can guarantee they are committed to providing positive influences and having fun with the Lower School students. This year, the yearbook staff decided to expose those behind the scenes who work with the youngest generation of Annie Wrighters.

Below: Mr. Klarsch and Nicholas Eutsler share a handshake in the hall.

Right: Max King, Natasha Anderson, Kelsey Anderson, Mrs. Thompson, Elizabeth Parks, and Ben Dillner say...aaah!

Below: Ms. Heath, Caitlin Wood, Cici Klein, Erica Stirn, Christina Menke, Taylor Wagemans, and Samara Matson anxiously wait for their apple juice.

Above: Can you tell by Kally and Zachary Dowling's smiles that they are related?

Above: Michaela Morse decides that Santa's reindeer deserve only the best, pretzels!

Above: Kathy Kimpel concentrates as she opens a package of frosting.

Ahh...the joys of recess!

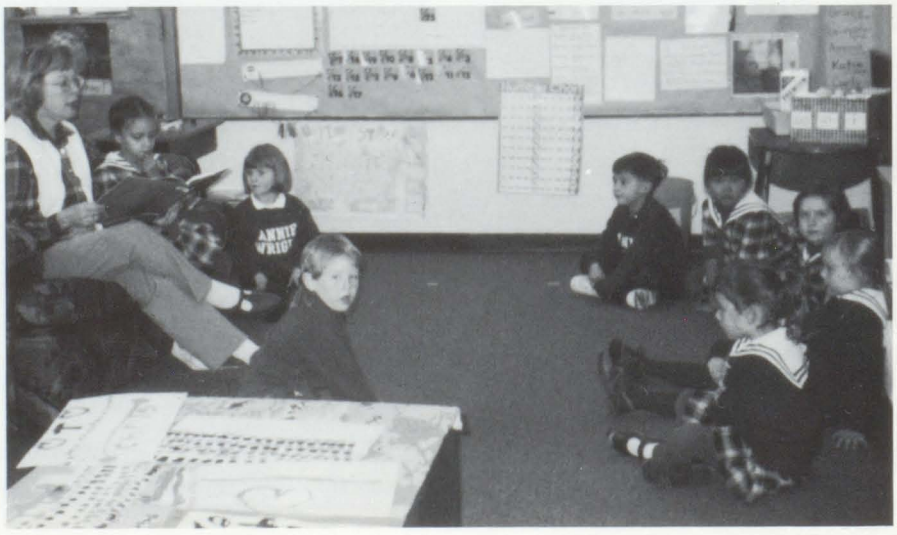

"I'm so cute!" Adelara Adekoya poses for the camera.

"When's Lunch?! When's recess?!?!?!" These cries are often heard throughout the day in the Lower School. Between learning to read and to multiply, lower schoolers need breaks during the long day.

Lower Schoolers spread peace throughout the halls.

Pre-K listens eagerly as Ms. Pell reads a story.

Michael Bonazza, Andrew Helgeson, and Aidan Haley show off their strength.

Kathleen Takehara's mother reminds her not to talk with her mouth full as Peter Mertz smiles big for the camera.

Amanda Strickland, CiCi Klein and Joscelyn Rompogren monkey around during their afternoon recess.

"I want more! I want more!" Second Grader Marie Tucker exclaims at lunch.

Lower Schoolers fight for the lime light.

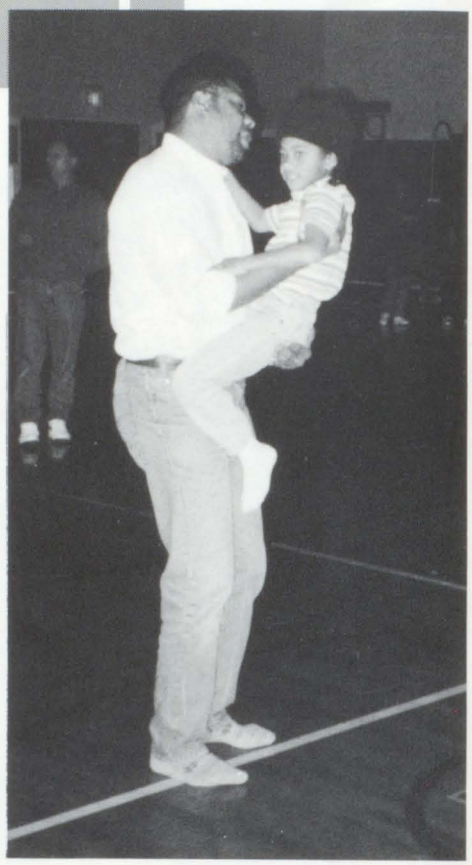

Lower School

Lower School Dance!

BOOGIE!

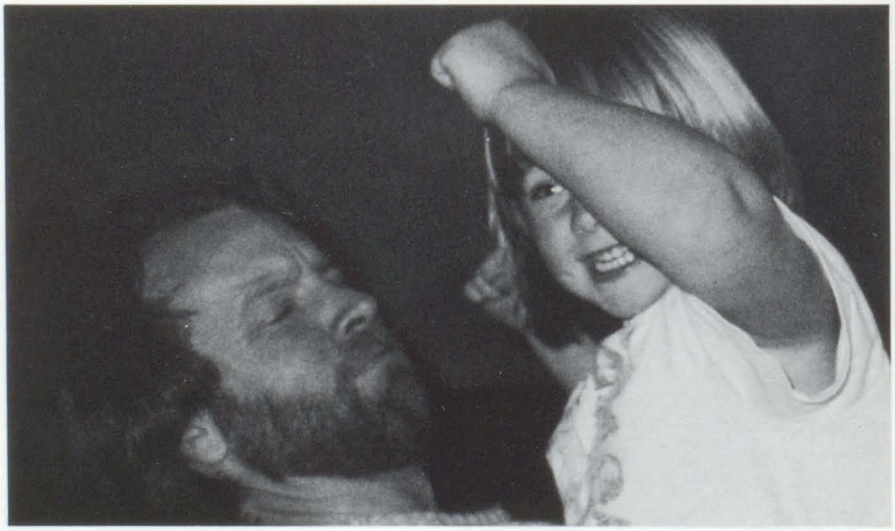

The Lower Schoolers boogie down!! They danced the night away doing the hokey pokey and the Macarana. They were not the only ones having fun... their parents had a blast dancing with them, too! Lower Schoolers who were not tall enough to dance with their parents got a boost. It was a fun and exciting event for everyone!

Myranda Morris and her father hip-hop away at the dance.

Disco! Aiden Haley, Andy Helgeson and Nick Griot go back to the 70s.

Hannah Dale says "I love you Daddy!"

Alex Mungia does a little dance after he successfully completes the limbo.

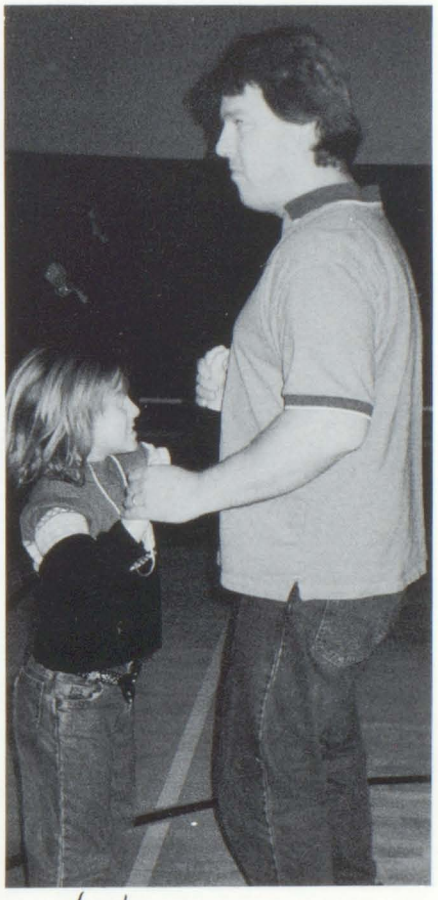

"Ahh! you got me!" Madeline Mancuso is caught hula- hooping.

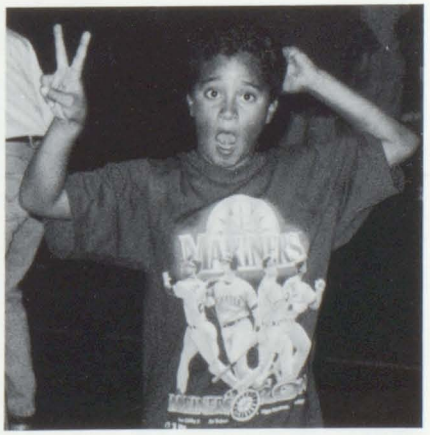

Put your right foot in... everyone at left lines up to do the hokey pokey. Below: Anna Schacht dances with a tall, handsome stranger.

Hey Macarena! Hannah Bearden, Randyn Morris and Denise Arnold do the Macarena.

"Don't hate me because I'm beautiful!" Peter Edwards pauses to pose for the camera.

Lower School

"Hey Little Buddy!!"

The Skipper on the TV show "Gilligan's Island" had many nicknames for his best friend Gilligan, but the most famous would have to be "little buddy." Walking the halls of the Annie Wright Lower School, one hears, amid all of the shouting, many nicknames being called out as friends greet each other in the morning and tearfully part in the afternoon. Check out Annie Wright's Gilligans and Skippers on these two pages as they embark on their 160-day tour!

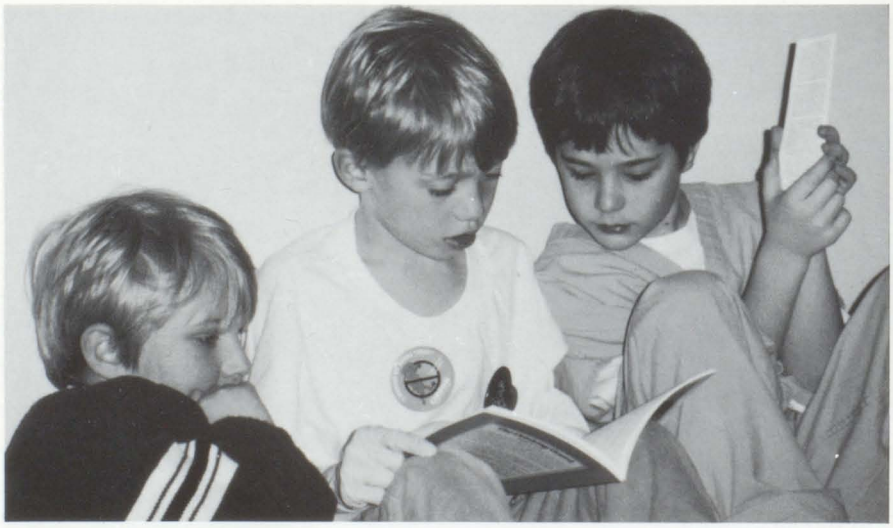

Below: Maren Anderson, Kya Granum, Meaghan Shaffer, and Jaime Scholtens hang around on the swings.

Jordan Lyon and Micah Wood test the strength of their balsa structure. Look at those bulging biceps!

Right: Ian MacLeod, Jake McLaughlin, and Simon Meske share a private moment reading in the hallway.

Above: Ashley Knapp and Jenny Predmore read about their future professions.

M.S. in Civvies

A look at middle school life out of uniform!

Civvies days at Annie Wright are days when students exchange their uniforms for "normal" clothes. Out come the favorite old sweatshirts and the CK jeans. Sometimes there is a theme, such as Halloween, or a specific purpose, such as a work day to benefit a charity. Usually, however, it's just a chance for those fashion-minded students to express themselves and a source of embarassement for the forgetful students.

Eighth grade boys Alex, Graff, Gabe, and Brendan wonder if they'll be invited back next year.

Gabe, Sarah, Lydia, Nadira, Kalie, and Hillary are all decked out for their first year of middle school.

Watch out! The food police (Kalie, Hillary, Ariel) are on alert for food wasters.

Seventh grader Nick Anderson could tell you some things about him and his stapler.

"You know this is going to cost you, don't you?" asks sixth grader Malaika Raymond.

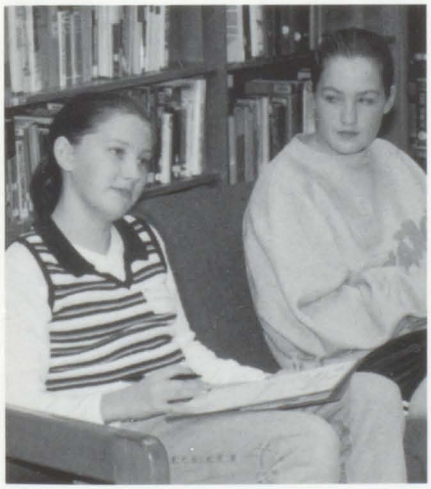

Josh (far right) wonders at the strange clothing of his classmates Brian, Adrienne, and Devin (left to right).

Way cool! It's civvies day! Shira & Hilary break away from their favorite class: Life Skills.

How to cope with the blues? Gillian and Clarice can show you the way, thanks to the Teen Health Forum.

Nadira muscles a bag of food at the St Leo's Food Connection where the Middle School volunteered before Thanksgiving.

Middle School

Students in Action

Are we learning anything yet??

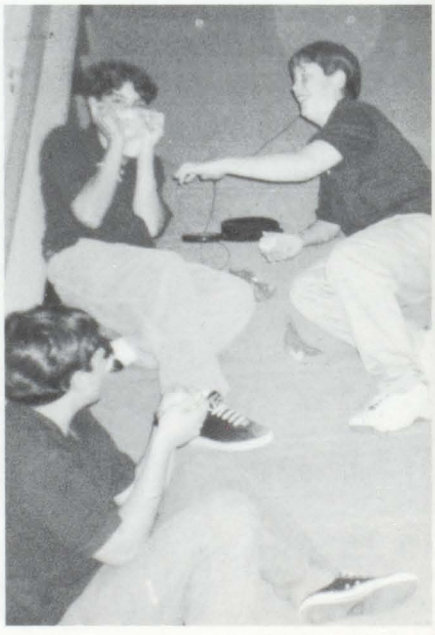

During the day, Annie Wright Middle School students find themselves all over the school and the community. No matter what they are wearing or what their tools are, they still know how to pose for the camera!!

6th grade girls take a break from their academic studies to touch up on the teamwork skills they learned in kindergarten.

Erin Sturrock doesn't even notice "the flashy thing" while she takes her test.

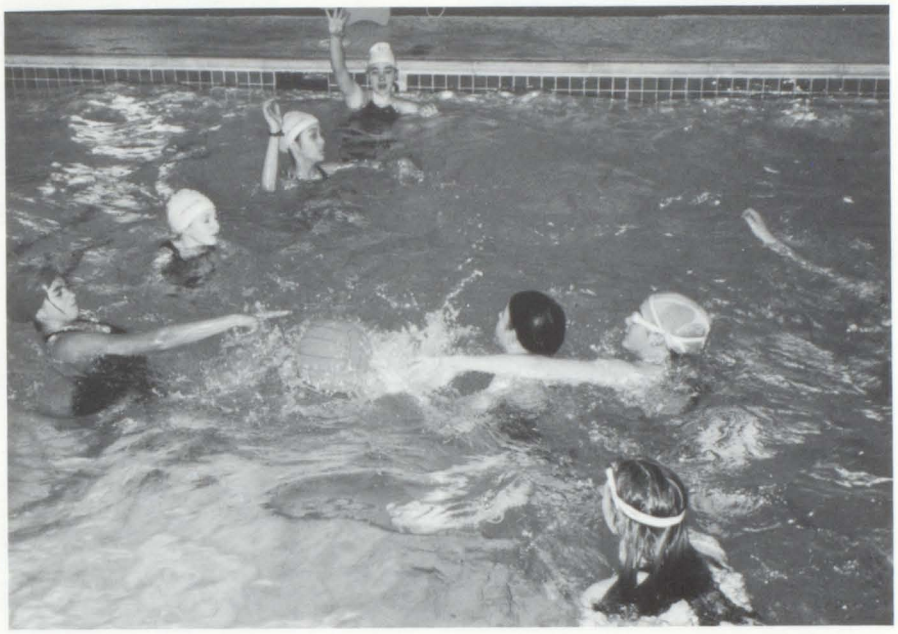

Aaron, Gregory, and Jim stake out their territory during lunch.

Is Ben Leighton trying to get out of following Doc. Smith's orders???

Eighth graders had to settle for a game of volleyball because they got lost on the way to Mr. Griffin's Olympic-size swimming pool while daydreaming of high school.

Ryan Wemyss knows there's no such thing as women's work!!!

Ben Leighton is caught doing homework instead of supporting the M.S. girl's volleyball team.

Katherine Murto's bright smile competes for attention with her yellow swimming cap.

Middle School

School chums

"We go together, like..."

Years from now you may not remember Ms. Horton's math class, and you'll wish you could remember Emil's health advice, but you will remember the friends with whom you got caught talking or played computer games, or maybe even the boy/girl you always tried to avoid sitting next to in chapel because of the huge crush you had on him/her...

Caroline Griffin and Hala Baghdadi can't even stay still long enough to have their picture taken!!!

Hala Baghdadi and Elisabeth Gose live it up in the hallways in their identical uniforms.

Jeane Rosenberg and Athena Macy in a pool-side rendevous.

Tyler Fulcher and Brendon Clark join together to charm the world.

Ryan Wemyss, Josh Miller, and Brian Anderson share a computer moment.

Dan-Vy Le and Erin Sturrock laugh at a magazine.

Middle School

M.S. in Uniform

"Whoever said uniforms prevent individuality never met Annie Wright Middle School students!"

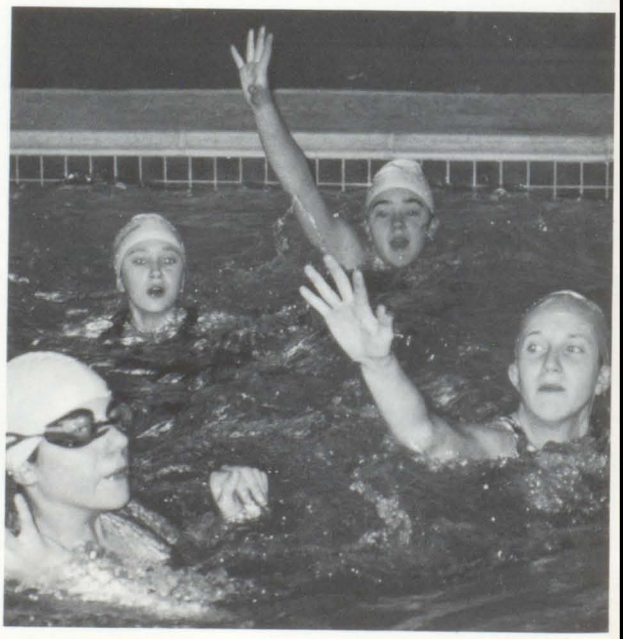

Members of M.S. student council model the perfect uniform.

Pierre Briand wonders if Nathan Engdahl will notice that Pierre is wearing his sweatshirt.

The sixth grade boys dance around to show that while they may dress the same, they still act goofier than their mismatched female classmates.

Katherine Murto better remember to tuck in her shirt before chapel!!!

They coordinate so well you might not even realize these kids aren't a basketball team, but only AWS middle school students in the small gym during lunch.

Middle School

One fine day

in the life of Upper School students.

During a typical day at Annie Wright, a student's schedule may look like the following:

8:00 - 8:15	morning meeting
8:15 - 9:00	e-mail (study hall)
9:05 - 9:50	full body (swimming)
9:55 -10:40	nap time (US history)
10:45 -11:15	more naps (activity per.)
11:20 -12:00	play time (drama tech.)
12:00 -12:45	stomach (lunch)
12:45 -1:30	hands (pottery)
1:35 - 2:20	brain!! (math)
2:25 - 3:10	ears (music history)

Carrie Lorensen can barely contain her excitement as she wonders what flavor the frozen yogurt could be.

Elena Fedorova and Shilpi Mathur support each other through the day.

"It's been a hard day's work" and senior Christi Shiner is ready to graduate.

"What's that again?" Kristin Bennett is confused while Meghan McCloskey just laughs.

Tyana Burslie makes sure that day students pay for their nutritious school lunches.

Sarah Clifthorne and Julie Potter just keep going and going all day long.

Nicole Comforto seems to think playing volleyball is like holding the moon.

Anna Sommers and Jill Nowogroski take a break from their studies to check their hair.

During drama tech, Jo Davidson and Denise Yu plot together for alternative uses for the stage paint

Upper School

Goofin' around...

"Cat got your tongue??"

Everyone seems so eager to describe the Upper School experience, but the only similarity between the descriptions seems to be their wackiness!! So maybe instead of trying to verbally define what it's like to go to Annie Wright, whether as a day student or as a dormer, we should let the pictures speak for themselves!!

After skipping on the breakfast buritos Sasha (11), Lindsey (9), Francesca (11), and Whitney (9) (left to right) are starving for some donuts.

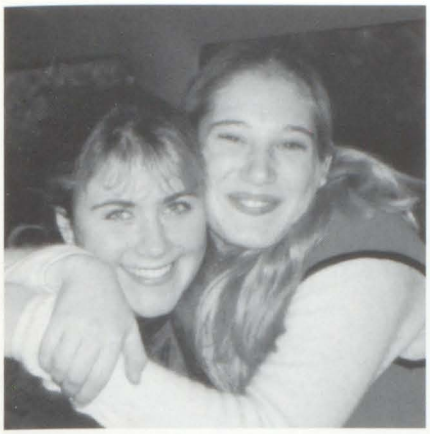

Although there are too many pickles and too little time, juniors Robin Barrick and Meghan McCloskey can't help smiling.

Lucky Rowen-Granoski drops her knitting in shock over the wild antics of her fellow Red Ties.

Shana Godfred (9) gives Jill Nowogroski (11) a choke hold in her excitement over going to see The Marriage of Figaro.

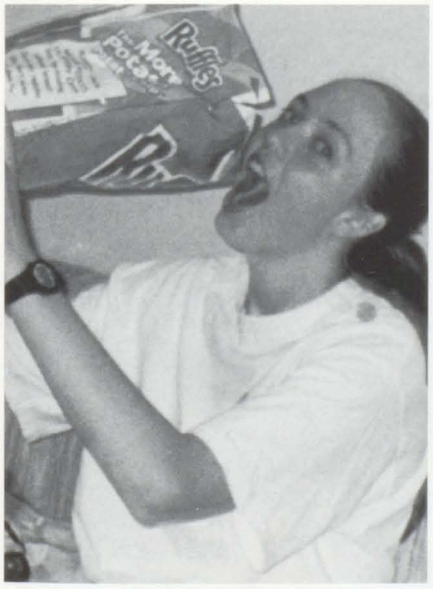

Khushbu and Jet (Ruth): ambassadors of goodwill between Yellow and Blue ties.

Sarah Clifthorne (12) and Amy Nam (12): polar opposites or exact replicas??

Amber (10) uses her trusty not-quite rusty telescope to focus on Michelle's (10)translation of Mr. Swenson's explanation.

Julie Potter, senior slacker #1, doesn't want to bother picking out individual chips!!

Annie Cooper (10) expresses herself out of uniform.

Upper School

Beyond the Academics...

Upper School Activities

Annie Wright Upper School offers many chances for students to eliminate the stress of the academic day. Student Council organizes surprise parties during the holidays, SAC Pep plans pep assemblies with interesting games, and other little things, such as noise makers in recognition of student's effort, help keep students motivated through their chaotic, yet still endearing, times at Annie Wright.

Santa's elves, Lindsey (9), Serena (11), Jo (12), and Shelby (12) (left to right), are eager to please one and all.

Juniors Meghan and Francesca prep for Prom.

An advisor and a student (Mr. Klarsch and Haysook Jung) both smiling after the student receives a midterm? Can it be?

Katrina (12) gets a kiss from Ambercrombie the school mascot (Kate Edwards).

Marcail Webb (10)and Jasmine Bridges (12) take a break from class bonding at Fall Orientation.

Academic Honors were given to these smiling students at the Winter Awards Assembly.

Elizabith Melson (10) grimaces as she pulls yet another book out of her locker.

Mr. Self and Ms. Mertz primp, while Ms. Jueling sits in silence, as Ms. Bauska (far left) introduces the faculty skit at the Fall Awards Assembly.

Is Jaana Piilpark feeling the effect of the stage paint as she prepares for the fall play, Steel Magnolias, or the effects of her busy schedule since arriving from Estonia?

Upper School

Dorm Activities

Fun trips and parties.....

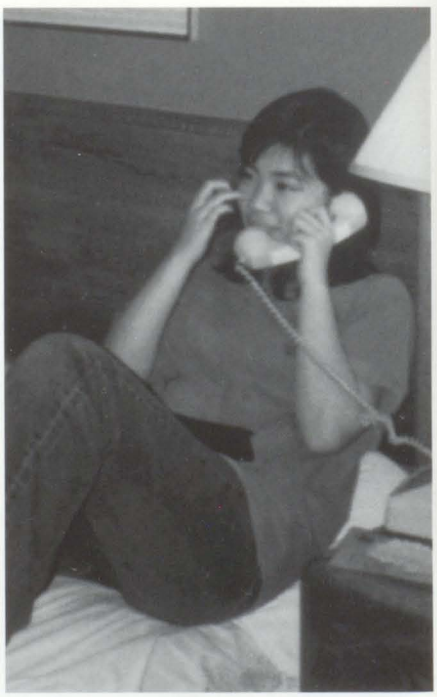

Who thinks living in AWS dorm is boring? If you think it's boring, you are totally wrong. Boarders can go shopping every weekend like day students. Also, there are many fun trips to other states for short or long vacations. Boarders' birthdays are especially fun. We sing birthday songs together and have birthday parties. It's really fun to be in the dorm!!

Birthday party --- Ms. Ganley made us birthday cakes. International students had an October birthday party in a Korean restaurant.

Phoebe, tired from skiing for many hours, fell asleep on the floor.

Colorado trip --- Ayano is talking to her mother in Japan, "Mom!! I'm in Colorado!!"

Colorado Trip --- Phoebe, Denise, Sally, and Kristi Solt-Selleck -- Going up to the mountain in the back for fun skiing!!!

Jaana, Sasha, Marcail, Anne, Ayano, and Nobuko are waiting for the cable car in Ghiradelli Square in San Francisco.

San Francisco trip--- Nobuko, Ayano, Jaana, Kanami, Sayaka, Anne, and Marcail goof around at Union Square.

Colorado trip--- There is a lot of snow in Colorado!! Sally, Denise, Ayano, and Phoebe are ready to ski!!

Sayaka sleeps in the airplane to San Francisco --- dreaming of encountering a handsome guy in San Francisco???

Halloween Day-- Boarders searched for the perfect pumpkin and took a picture together on a tractor.

Upper School

Dorm Life

Fun(!) life in the dorm....

Come and visit our dorm! It's more fun than going window shopping! Boarders live on the second and third floors in the school building. Most students have their own rooms, but some new students have roommates. Anybody can come in and visit boarders' rooms as long as she(he) signs in. You will never feel regretful after you visit our dorm because our dorm life is wonderful!!!

Dinner in the cafeteria--- Delicious pizza!! Boarders are eager to get FOOD.

Thanksgiving formal dinner -- serving cup of coffee and tea to boarders after e turkey.

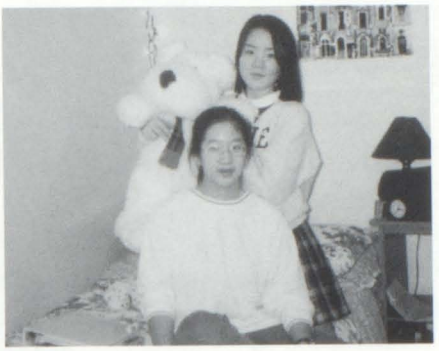

Peung is playing a Thai instrument for entertainment after Thanksgiving formal dinner.

Yoo Sun's room--- Yoo Sun and Hay Sook work on a project together...Or maybe play games on the computer???

Sally's room--- How pretty the Christmas lights are!!! Shin Hye and Sally pose on the bed under the lights.

Jenny and Rhea play around in the dormitory after school.

Jan Lind chats on the phone in the R.A. office.

"Here, hab sub tea," sniffs Claire as she stays 'home' from school, sick.

Min Jin's room--- Min Jin and Denise enjoy being neighbors.

Upper School

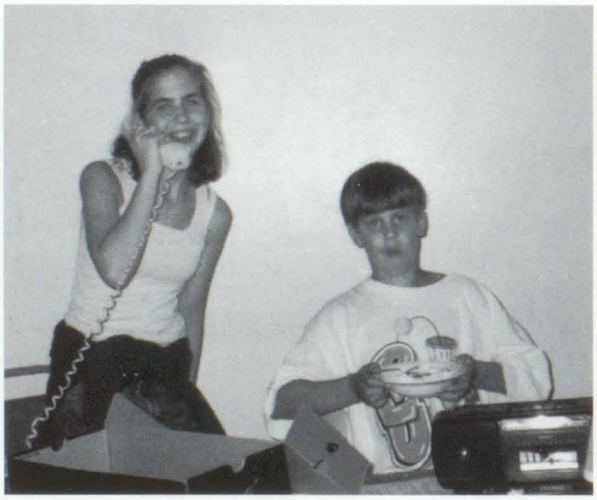

Seeing Double

Annie Wright: a family affair?

As you walk down the halls at Annie Wright, you may find yourself wondering why so many faces seem familiar. That feeling of recognition is not only due to the school's small size, but to the large number of relatives who attend Annie Wright. The many siblings throughout the three divisions and the faculty, the cousins, and even entire families, all help to create the nurturing environment at Annie Wright.

Adelara (PK) and Adesewa (1) Adekoya strut their stuff at Poipu Point, Kauai.

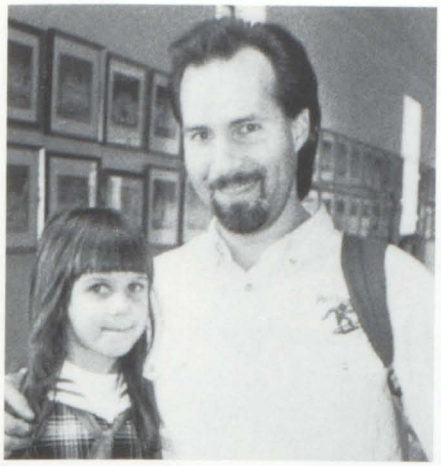

Ruth (10) and Michael (5) Bonazza doing the usual: Ruth on the phone and Michael goofing off!

Andrea Edman (K), Erin Hoff (3), Tal Edman (5) and their cousins are all dressed up for their uncle's wedding.

Mr Hamilton (music teacher) and his daughter Grace (K) pause to flash a smile for the camera.

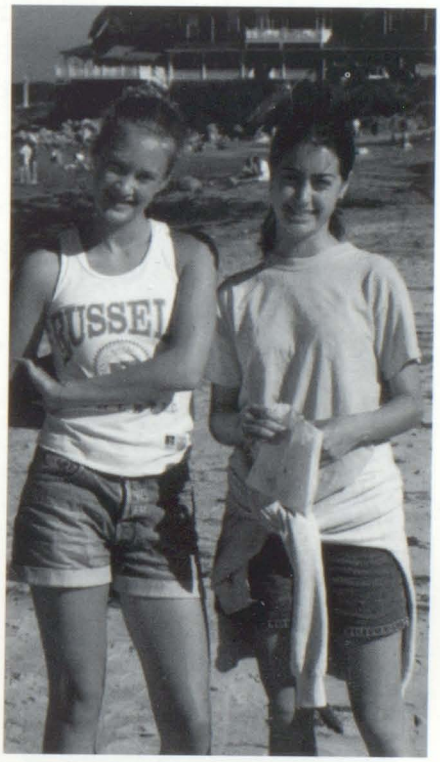

Alacia Welch (12), Christi Shiner (12) and Cibil Ludington (not pictured), the female Paul Revere, are all from one family.

It seems as if there are as many Wood kids as there are pillars! (Gillian (12), Caitlin (4), Gabe (8), and Micah (4) Wood in Turkey.)

Brett and Kacie Meager (8 & 11) share the same smile one afternoon.

Aaron (7) and Misha (5) Golston take their parents for a bike ride at Fort Lewis artillery range.

Summer Photos

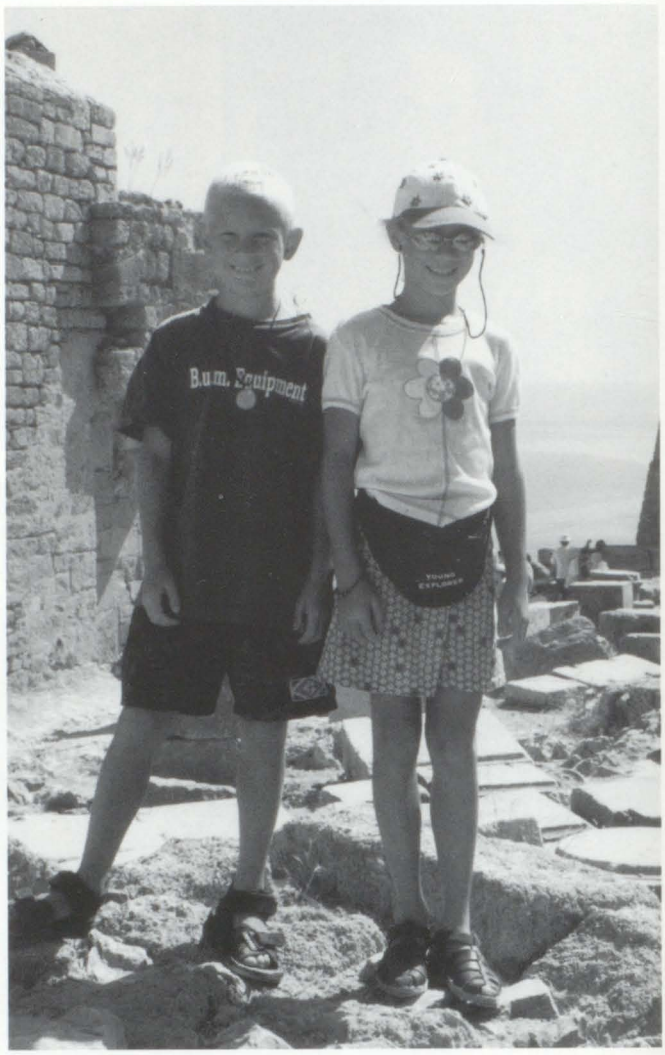

Our lives beyond the school year...

School may end in June, but many students at Annie Wright still see each other during the summer months. Others return to their hometowns or travel to entirely new places. Wherever they are, Annie Wright students make sure to enjoy themselves before the time comes to pass through the hedges once more.

Christi Shiner (12), Sarah Clifthorne (12), and their friend cool off by jumping into the Yakima river while another friend wished he knew how to swim.

Micah and Caitlin Wood (4) pause for a moment during their hands-on history lesson in Rhodes, Greece.

Jet Bonazza (10), Ashley Fuson (9), Khushbu Walia (9), Michelle Cho (10), Stephanie Elford (9), Adrienne Ortega (10), Alacia Welch (12), Kanami Ninomiya (11), Marie Rosenberg (11) travel with the school to Japan.

Nora Swenson (2) gives her kitten, Cuddles, a swimming lesson in her own Olympic size swimming pool.

When she wasn't building grain sheds in Ologosi, Honduras, Kate Edwards (12) spent time with her host family and one of their many hens.

Andrew Kerr (5) spends his vacation with his friend Cornet.

Eighth graders Lucida Lind, Allison Rone, Brendan Clark, Tyler Fulcher, and Graff Haley take a three hour tour of Commencement Bay.

Ben Dillner (3) and Max King (3) share a groovy afternoon jumping around.

Moving On...

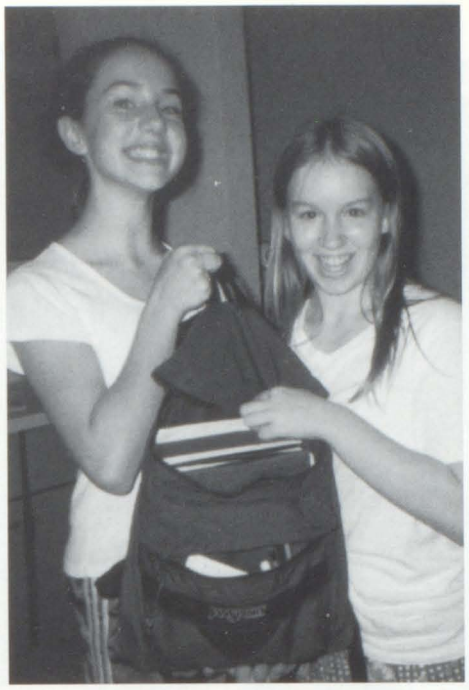

Passing it on...

What advice would you like to give to the 1998-99 5th grade class?

-Get a bigger back pack!
-Don't be afraid. It's fun!
-Read lots of books.
-Get a cat and you'll get to tell about it in class!
-Math is easy and fun. Don't forget to laugh!
-Always bring your homework (or expect a call from Mr. B)

To Middle School!

Passing it on...

What would you like to pass on to the 1998-99 8th grade class?

-the blue bench in front of Mr. Fallat's office
-the saying of "Muchos Yuckos"
-the old white shoes that I wore all year in 7th grade
-my ability to live through 10 years of school food.
-my abilities to fold my shirt under and still receive tickets from Mrs. Horton and Doc
-the "Do you Yahoo?" sticker in my locker
-my ability to make friends easily

To High School!

Congratulations, 8th Grade!

So . . . We made it!

Through dangers untold and hardships unnumbered, through billions of hours of stress, bad jokes, tears, more bad jokes, bonding, a few good jokes, and lots and lots of debriefing . . .

We have survived.

As a testament we have left the following pages -- pictures that cement our memories and quotations that attempt to express the unexpressable -- so that in twenty years, when we're all wonderful, fabulous, famous people, all who knew us can point to our pages and say, "I knew them in high school!"

Gillian Rebecca Wood

D007: You are a true, loyal friend. I love you very much.

I thank each of you for sharing with me the best experience of my life. When things get tough, put your left foot in and shake it all about. NO FEAR!

You are forever "in the arms of an angel." Thank you for sharing your world with me. I have a lot of faith in you. Stay strong, sweetie! I love you always, my soccer idol! When you need hope, follow your fairies and unicorns to the mermaids swimming in the sky.

To children everywhere- I love you with all my heart, and I pray that you may always see the beauty you hold within your souls. I believe in you as people who deserve genuine love. Always hope! Always believe in fairies and superheroes! After all, you are the most precious jewels on our planet!

"That bird is so annoying; it needs to die!"
Thanks for the laughs, Linds!

"The tiniest dewdrop hanging from a grass blade in the morning is big enough to reflect the sunshine and the blue of the sky." -Unknown

"Love is the seed of all hope. It is the enticement to trust, to risk, to try, to go on." -Gloria Gaither

"Help us to care for those who are broken in both body and spirit. Help us to bring them from sorrow to joy." -Reverend Pat

To the gang: Kate, Merde, Jen, Gail, Jennifer, Trish- I love you all very much! You have been like sisters to me. I will always treasure the happy moments we shared. Always dream! And "can't" is NOT a word!

I thank everyone at AWS who has influenced my growth as an individual. I stand proudly today, knowing that I owe much of my strength to you. I would be a lost soul without you as my foundation. I love you and will never forget you.

It is my right to be uncommon - if I can.
I seek opportunity - not security.
I want to take the calculated risk;
to dream and to build, to fail and to succeed.
I refuse to barter incentive for a dole.
I prefer the challenges of life to the guaranteed existence;
the thrill of fulfillment to the stale calm of utopia.
I will not trade freedom for beneficence
nor my dignity for a handout.
I will never cower before any master
nor bend to any threat.
It is my heritage to stand erect, proud and unafraid;
to think and act for myself, enjoy the benefit of my creations and to face the world boldly and say, this I have done.
- Dean Alfange

"I wish you winter sparklers, summer snowflakes, and rainbow rings around the moon." Right back at ya! Thank you for your love and care!

To my magical fairy- Merçi beaucoup pour être mon amie vrai. Je vous aimerai toujours!

Thank you for all the special moments we shared. FareF!

To my fam - Thank you for helping me grow, through good times and bad. I admire you all. Oh, and SOCCER RULES!!! It's your ball; put it where it belongs!

Kate - You were my backbone time and time again. Thank you for your loyalty. I treasure our friendship and will always love you!

"It isn't where you came from, it's where you're going that counts."
-Ella Fitzgerald

"She was a cat who was a kitten."

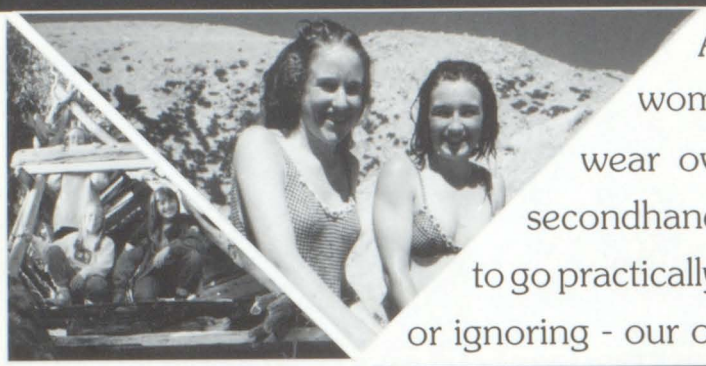

Follow your dreams to the twinkling stars and the shining moon!

Red Ties - I love you & thank you for your open minds & intelligence! Always speak your voice; you have much to share! Mr. T - You once told me "if skating's what you really want to do, we'll support you all the way." I will never forget you and your faith in me! Señora Mertz -For the child you hold inside, I've savored every moment with you. You are my idol, and I hope to be like you someday. Ms. Rossuck - Thank you for your love! Marcail - Go-go Gadget all the way, baby! Lindsay - You are a beautiful person, and believe in your strength. I love you! Christi - You are the first to be so sincere with your words. Thank you for believing in me. You have given me strength! Heidi - You've been like an older sister to me! Thank you for your extra effort to show you care. I love you and all you do! Miss Erin - You have helped me develop from my youth; I have always emulated you. Thank you for always being there! I love you and will never forget you! Maria -Hey, sweetpea, keep your hopes alive and your dreams in the sky. Sending my love. Anyone who reads this - I wish you all the best. And I challenge you to look deep within your being to discover who you truly are. Now I dare you to be that person!

A woman wins by giving herself and other women permission--to eat; to be sexual; to age; to wear overalls, a paste tiara, a Balenciaga gown, a secondhand opera cloak, or combat boots; to cover up or to go practically naked; to do whatever we choose in following- or ignoring - our own aesthetic.

PUT SOMETHING IN
Draw a crazy picture,
Write a nutty poem,
Sing a mumble-gumble song,
Whistle through your comb.
Do a loony-goony dance
'Cross the kitchen floor,
Put something silly in the world
That ain't been there before.

Listen to the
MUSTN'TS, child
Listen to the
DON'TS
Listen to the
SHOULDN'TS
The IMPOSSIBLES,
the WONT'S
Listen to the NEVER
HAVES
Then listen close to me-
Anything can happen, child,
ANYTHING can be.

-Zora Neale Hurston

Let me fall
Let me climb
There's a moment when fear
and dream must collide

Someone I am
Is waiting for courage
The one I want
The one I will become
Will catch me

So let me fall
If I must call
I won't heed your warnings
I won't hear them

All I ask
All I need
Let me open whichever
Door I might open

Let me fall
If I fall
Though the phoenix may or may not rise

I will dance so freely
Holding on to no one
You can hold me only
If you too will fall
Away from all these
Useless fears and chains

Someone I am
Is waiting for my courage
The one I want
The one I will become
Will catch me

So let me fall
If I must fall
I won't heed your warnings
I won't hear them

Let me fall
If I fall
There's no reason
To miss this one chance
This perfect moment
Just let me fall

-J. Corcoran/ B.Jutras

Mom & Dad-
Thank you for all the opportunities you have given me. Your unconditional love and support have given me the strength to accomplish anything. Don't be afraid. They listened. The many-voiced song of the river echoed softly. Siddhartha looked into the river and saw many pictures in the flowing water. He saw his father, lonely, mourning for his son; he saw himself, lonely also with the bonds of longing for his far away son; he saw his son, also lonely, the boy eagerly advancing along the burning path of life's desires; each one on concentrating on his goal, each one obsessed by his goal, each one suffering. The river's voice was sorrowful. It sang with yearning and sadness, flowing towards its goal.

Siddhartha tried to listen better. The picture of his father, his own picture, and the picture of his son all flowed into each other. Kamal's picture also appeared and flowed on, and the picture of Govinda and others emerged and passed on. They all became part of the river. It was the goal of all of them, yearning, desiring, suffering; and the river's voice was full of longing, full of smarting woe, full of insatiable desire. The river flowed on towards its goal. Siddhartha saw the river hasten, made up of himself and his relatives and all the people he had ever seen. All the waves and water hastened, suffering towards goals, many goals, to the waterfall, to the sea, to the current, to the ocean, and all goals were reached and each one was succeeded by another. The water changed to vapor and rose, became rain and came down again, became spring, brook and river, changed anew, flowed anew. But the yearning voice had altered. It still echoed sorrowfully, searchingly, but other voices accompanied it, voices of pleasure and sorrow, good and evil voices, laughing and lamenting voices, hundreds of voices, thousands of voices. Siddhartha listened. He was now listening intently, completely absorbed, quite empty, taking in everything. He felt that he had now completely learned the art of listening. He had often heard all this before, all these numerous voices in the river, but today they sounded different. He could no longer distinguish the different voices-- the merry voice from the weeping voice, the childish voice the manly voice. They all belonged to each other: the lament of those who yearn, the laughter of the wise, the cry of indignation and the groan of the dying. They were all interwoven and interlocked, entwined in a thousand ways. And all the voices, all the goals, all the yearnings, all the sorrows, all the pleasures, all the good and evil, all of them together was the world. All of them together was the stream of events, the music of life. When Siddhartha listened attentively to this river, to this song of a thousand voices; when he did not listen to the sorrow or laughter, when he did not bind his soul to any one particular voice and absorb it in his Self, but heard them all, the whole, the unity; then the great song of a thousand voices consisted of one word: Om-- perfection.

She was an adult, who was a child... KM, JP, GW

"Do you hear?" asked Vasudeva's glance once again.

Vasudeva's smile was radiant; it hovered brightly in all the wrinkles of his old face, as the Om hovered over all the voices of the river. His smile was radiant as he looked at his friend, and now the same smile appeared on Siddhartha's face. His wound was healing, his pain was dispersing; his Self had merged into unity.

From that hour Siddhartha ceased to fight against his destiny. There shone in his face the serenity of knowledge, of one who is no longer confronted with conflict of desires, who has found salvation, who is in harmony with the stream of events, with the stream of life, full of sympathy compassion, surrendering himself to the stream belonging to the unity of all things.

As Vasudeva rose from the seat on the riverbank, when he looked into Siddhartha's eyes, and saw the serenity of knowledge shining in them, he touched his shoulder gently in his kind protective way wand said "I have waited for this hour, my friend. Now that it has arrived, let me go. I have been Vasudeva the ferryman for a long time. Now it is over. Farewell hut, farewell river, farewell Siddhartha."

Siddhartha bowed low before the departing man.

"I knew it," he said softly. "Are you going into the woods?"

"Yes, I am going into the woods; I am going into the unity of all things," said Vasudeva, radiant.

And so he went away. Siddhartha watched him. With great joy and gravity, he watched him, saw his steps full of peace, his face glowing, the form full of light.

Seven years is a loooong time!

Sing,
Sing a song,
Sing out loud,
Sing out strong!
Sing of good things, not bad.
Sing of happy, not sad.

Make it simple,
To last your whole life long,
Don't worry if it's not good enough
For anyone else to hear,
Just sing.

MS Girls' Soccer

This season, the Middle School Girls' Soccer Team put forth an amazing effort to work together as a team. The strong women chose captains Laura Lind and Jordan Drosdick as leaders for the season. Their hard work and an innovative mentor program allowed this team to go undeafeated for the third year in a row despite bright yellow socks. The mentor program paired more experienced players with those just learning. Whether helping out the boys' team at games or at their own practices, the girls showed amazing enthusiasm. This effort paid off in a championship.

Below: Jordan Drosdick works hard to get the ball from an opponent.

Right: Is that a ponytail I see? When the boys' team came up short on players, the girls volunteered to play in the game with them. Helpful, aren't they?

MS Boys' Soccer

This year our proud soccer boys worked hard to achieve a successful season. Coach Emil Verbovski emphasized learning and cooperation throughout the season. Captains Gabe Wood and Paul Verbovski helped by keeping up the team's morale, and teaching younger players the fundamentals of the game. Using their knowledge of a tight game plan and a powerful defense, this strong team achieved a near perfect season with a record of [illegible]ing them the league champions. At the end of the season, our hard-working Gators had learned strategy, discipline, and self-confidence. These attributes will make them great players wherever they go, on the soccer field and off.

MS Volleyball

"Rah, Rah, Gators!" was a familiar refrain during this year's Middle School Volleyball season. The 36-player team worked hard to learn new skills and bond as a team. Coaches Beryl Horton and Julie Potter encouraged the girls to work hard by offering milkshakes to the whole team for achieving a goal. The season ended on a high note when the girls beat the League Champions, a season long goal. Despite the large number of players, all of the girls got a chance to play in all games, and the team finished second in the league.

MS Cross Country

The Middle School Cross Country team ran fast and hard to become the winners in the league, based on accumulated points. Their success was attributed not only to hard work and long practices, but to lollipops and football. Under the direction of Coach Dave Arnold, the team practiced by running around Tacoma to prepare for their one and a half mile races. In these races, captains Tyler Fulcher, Casey Leo, and Kirsten Lind showed their amazing talents, consistently finishing in the top ten, followed closely by eager teammates. At the end of the season, all members of the team were rewarded with hardened bodies and an appreciation of running.

Girls' Basketball

This years girls' basketball team has worked hard to achieve new and different goals set for them. Varsity coach Dave Arnold and JV coaches Matt Struckmeyer and Kacie Meager have focused on the team's early training on the development of skills and teamwork, and the girls have come through with shining colors and fierce determination. All of the hard work put into this year's season will be rewarded by many fun games and many strengthened friendships.

Boys' Basketball

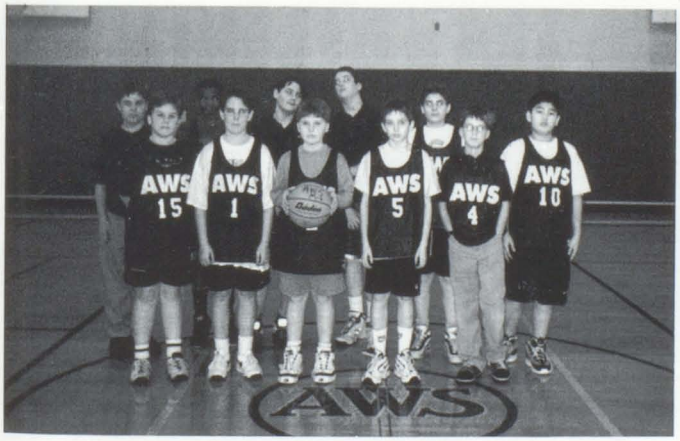

This year's middle school boys' basketball team concentrated on getting back to the basics. The team learned to accept responsibility, and cooperate better as a team. Coach Dave Arnold emphasized skills and teamwork as the primary focus of this year's season. The team ended the season in a series of heart-wrenching, down to the wire games. In the last seconds of these games, won by pure willpower, the boys truly showed their pride in the game and in their team. Some of the more outstanding occurrences were Patrick Fletcher's 25 points in the second half of a JV game, and Mike Elford's long buzzer three-pointers that sank for a win. If you did not get a chance to see an exciting game, you missed observing some of the more determined players Annie Wright has ever seen.

Shooter Tyler Fulcher wonders, "Hey if I think about it real hard, will it go in?"

Soccer 4-4-4

The soccer team this year established a good tradition for all Annie Wright teams to follow, great spirit. With unique personalities (i.e. a coach who wore lipstick) to inspire them to play hard, these strong and mighty ladies battled their way through mud, endless timed miles, and excessive laundry to emerge as a team with the right priorities. Captains Christi and Caroline encouraged others to remember that fun was the top goal. Using this attitude allowed the defense to score, and the graceful gators to defeat Charles Wright hands down. Overall our proud soccer girls worked hard and had fun, and this alone makes them a truly triumphant team.

Cross Country

This year our proud gator runners stretched, lunged, and raced their way to a very successful season. Ten brave and buff women strutted their stuff in much too short shorts as the team competed against other teams from all around the Sea-Tac League. The driving force behind these strong ladies, although they claimed it was ice cream, was in reality the determination and spirit of the girls to overcome their own personal obstacles. As the team fought hurt knees, shin splints, blisters, and inflexibility, they grew together and learned how to be a true team.

Volleyball

This year's ladies of volleyball worked hard all season to achieve many goals. They made the district competition and played hard. Captains Julie Potter and Kate Edwards worked with JV Captains Katherine Drees and Kanami Ninomiya on improving skills with the younger players. Captain Julie Potter was named League MVP and seniors Kate Edwards and Katrina Marcinowski were appointed League All-Stars.

Sailing

The 1997 Sailing program lacked the wind of last season, but easily made up for the light breeze with great participation. Sixteen sailors mastered the 13 foot Olympic class dingy "The Laser." They sailed, they raced, and they enjoyed several trips to Starbucks. The season concluded with a week and a half on "Vandis," a Wosa 38 from Sweden.

Basketball

The 1998 Upper School Varsity basketball team went farther than any other squad in Annie Wright history: all the way to Districts. The team's hard work and dedication payed off and showed up in their games. Face-offs with Forest Ridge and newly acquired rival Overlake saw the team at their most aggressive. They played as a team, supported each other, and never stopped smiling. The Gators had a great time this winter and hope to go even farther next year.

Tennis

This year's tennis team got a great start to their season. Coaches Mary Bruce and Margaret Hannigan placed stress in the early portion of training on conditioning and the development of skills. The energetic players were at press time waxing their rackets in the hope of agood, fun season.

Softball

This year's softball team had a successful season with a limited number of rain outs and injuries. The spirits ran high and new players were recruited to play. As the year wound down, the players found themselves in top form with wins, losses, and lessons learned to carry through their coming summer.

Crew

Heeve-Ho! Just off the water, novice crew members Whitney Petrey, Heather Mills, and Christine Hartung help carry the heavy boat up the dock.

For most crew members, the day begins at four, AM that is. They scramble, still half asleep, to put on the warmest clothes possible and prepare for the morning row in 30 degree weather with light rain, or fog. If you were one of the few, lucky enough to avoid the hectic morning practices in the dark, afternoon practices still loomed with the only major difference being the temperature of your surroundings. This year Annie Wright rowed with the CBRC team, and though they are tired now, they are stronger for actually having seen the crack of dawn.

Lauren Moses pauses to smile for the camera as she grabs a pair of hatchet oars to carry to the docks before hitting the water.

STADIUM THRIFTWAY

Let Our Deli and Catering Department Supply All Your Celebration Needs

Dear Laurie,

"The years have sped by, but it seems like only yesterday you were placed in our arms. You were so small and fragile, making us wary and afraid to hold you.

We have watched you over the years, scraping your knees, making new friends and learning from failures and successes along the way. All the things that have made you the person you are today. We will never regret a moment of our lives together and would do it all over again.

This person we see before us is admired by her peers, loved by her family, and ready to face whatever the world throws her way. You have matured and accepted life with dignity. There is no way to measure the love that fills our hearts and swells in our eyes for you, as we see you standing there in your gown, with your diploma in hand. Prouder parents you could not find. We will cherish this moment as long as we live.

There cannot be for us a greater gift than you. We are richer for having you come into our life. Today walk proudly with your head held high.

Receive our love and heartfelt congratulations with the spirit of admiration."
